The Way They Play Book 1:

The Performance Style of Jascha Heifetz Dario Sarlo, 2016-03-03 The violinist Jascha Heifetz 1901 1987 is considered among the most influential performers in history and still maintains a strong following among violinists around the world Dario Sarlo contributes significantly to the growing field of analytical research into recordings and the history of performance style Focussing on Heifetz and his under acknowledged but extensive performing relationship with the Bach solo violin works BWV 1001 1006 Sarlo examines one of the most successful performing musicians of the twentieth century along with some of the most frequently performed works of the violin literature The book proposes a comprehensive method for analysing and interpreting the legacies of prominent historical performers in the wider context of their particular performance traditions The study outlines this research framework and addresses how it can be transferred to related studies of other performers By building up a comprehensive understanding of multiple individual performance styles it will become possible to gain deeper insight into how performance style develops over time The investigation is based upon eighteen months of archival research in the Library of Congress s extensive Jascha Heifetz Collection It draws on numerous methods to examine what and how Heifetz played why he played that way and how that way of playing compares to other performers The book offers much insight into the music industry between 1915 and 1975 including touring programming audiences popular and professional reception and recording The study concludes with a discussion of Heifetz s unique performer profile in the context of violin performance history

Culture, Identity and Intense Performativity Tim Jordan, Brigid McClure, Kath Woodward, 2017-01-12 Being in the zone means performing in a distinctive unusual pleasurable and highly competent way at something you already regularly do dancing or playing a viola computer programming tennis and much more What makes the zone special This volume offers groundbreaking research that brings sociological and cultural studies to bear on the idea of being in the zone There is original research on musicians dancers and surfers which shows that being in the zone far from being exclusively individualised and private but must be understood as social and collective and possibly accessible to all The zone is not just for elite performers Being in the zone is not just the province of the athlete who suddenly and seemingly without extra effort swims faster or jumps higher or the musician who suddenly plays more than perfectly but also of the doctor working under intense pressure or the computer programmer staying up all night The meaning of such experiences for convincing people to work in intense conditions often with short term contracts is explored to show how being in the zone can have problematic effects and have negative and constraining as well as creative and productive implications Often being in the zone is understood from a psychological viewpoint but this can limit our understanding This volume provides the first in depth analysis of being in the zone from social and cultural viewpoints drawing on a range of theories and novel evidence Written in a stimulating and accessible style Culture Identity and Intense Performativity Being in the Zone will strongly appeal to students and researchers who aim to understand the experience of work creativity musicianship and sport Issues of the body are also central to being in the zone and will make this book relevant to anyone studying bodies and embodiment This collection will establish being in the zone as an important area of enquiry for social science and the humanities

Con Brio Nat Brandt, 2000-07-26 A 1959 New Yorker profile captured the inspired risk taking and raw creative spark of a Budapest String Quartet rehearsal Sasha leaped from his chair and with violin held aloft played the passage with exaggerated schmalz like a street fiddler in Naples Kroyt stopped playing and started singing a Russian song Mischa Schneider thereupon performed a number of stupendous triads on his cello Only Roisman went quietly on with his part untouched by the pandemonium around him playing Beethoven with his noble tone and elegant bowing Here were four men with personalities as varied as their ways of playing Yet when they played they produced a perfect union of instrumental voices and interpretive nuances that not only created an entirely new audience for chamber music in America but also made the Budapest String Quartet the premier chamber music group of the twentieth century
