Triangulating Translation Perspectives In Process Oriented Research Benjamins Translation Library:

Triangulating Translation Fabio Alves, 2003-11-24 This book contains a selection of papers presented in a subsection on translation process analysis at the II Brazilian International Translators Forum held on 23-27 July 2001. The volume builds on the notion of triangulation, i.e. the combined use of different methods of data elicitation and analyses to discuss methodological issues and actual experimental methods in the field of translation process research. Grouped in three parts, the seven contributions raise issues concerned among others with the translation pragmatics interface, the role of intersubjectivity, the attempts at modeling what accounts for translation competence and the effect of think aloud on translation speed, revision and segmentation. The volume also examines the process of translation in terms of relevant measurements which can validate some of the instruments used in the triangulation approach and fosters the application of triangulation as a pedagogical instrument to be applied to translators' training. The book will certainly find an audience among translation scholars doing experimental work and students and practitioners interested in capturing the translation process.

Triangulating Translation Fábio Alves dos Santos, 2003-01-01 The articles which appear in this volume stem from papers presented in a sub-section of the II Brazilian International Translators Forum dedicated to process-oriented research in translation. The congress's main theme, namely Translating the Millennium: Corpora, Cognition and Cultures, is reflected in the seven contributions which aim at fostering the dialogue among translation researchers interested in process-oriented investigations. This book highlights one of the main axes focusing on the interfaces between cognition and translation and more precisely on the investigation of translation processes from three main vantage points: theoretical perspectives, empirical investigations and pedagogical applications.

Cross-Linguistic Corpora for the Study of Translations

Silvia Hansen-Schirra, Stella Neumann, Erich Steiner, 2012-12-06 The book specifies a corpus architecture including annotation and querying techniques and its implementation. The corpus architecture is developed for empirical studies of translations and beyond those for the study of texts which are inter lingually comparable particularly texts of similar registers The compiled corpus CroCo is a resource for research and is with some copyright restrictions accessible to other research projects Most of the research was undertaken as part of a DFG Project into linguistic properties of translations Fundamentally this research project was a corpus based investigation into the language pair English German The long term goal is a contribution to the study of translation as a contact variety and beyond this to language comparison and language contact more generally with the language pair English German as our object languages This goal implies a thorough interest in possible specific properties of translations and beyond this in an empirical translation theory The methodology developed is not restricted to the traditional exclusively system based comparison of earlier days where real text excerpts or constructed examples are used as mere illustrations of assumptions and claims but instead implements an empirical research strategy involving structured data the sub corpora and their relationships to each other annotated and aligned on various theoretically motivated levels of representation the formation of hypotheses and their operationalizations statistics on the data critical examinations of their significance and interpretation against the background of system based comparisons and other independent sources of explanation for the phenomena observed Further applications of the resource developed in computational linguistics are outlined and evaluated

Interdisciplinarity in Translation and Interpreting Process Research Maureen Ehrensberger-Dow, Susanne Göpferich, Sharon O'Brien, 2015-06-15 First published as a special issue of Target issue 25 1 2013 this volume explores interdisciplinarity in translation and interpreting process research fields that have enjoyed a boom in the last decade For this reason the time was ripe for a reflection on the broad range of methodologies that have been applied in our endeavours to understand both translation and interpreting processes better The ten chapters provide a snapshot of how translation and interpreting process researchers have availed themselves of concepts and theories developed in other disciplines such as psychology the cognitive sciences journalism and literary studies to examine and illuminate their object of study This collection demonstrates that translation and interpreting process research borrow heavily from other disciplines and call for a consideration of how translation research can become truly interdisciplinary through increased collaboration synergy and mutual advancement

Handbook of Translation Studies Yves Gambier, Luc van Doorslaer, 2010 Moreover many items in the reference lists are hyperlinked to the TSB where the user can find an abstract of a publication All articles between 500 and 6000 words are written by specialists in the different subfields and are peer reviewed Last but not least the usability accessibility and flexibility of the HTS depend on the commitment of people who agree that Translation Studies does matter All users are therefore invited to share their feedback Any questions remarks and suggestions for improvement can be sent to the editorial team

The Handbook of Translation and Cognition John W. Schwieter, Li Wei, 2020-01-09 The Handbook of Translation and Cognition is a pioneering state of the art investigation of cognitive approaches to translation and interpreting studies TIS Offers timely and cutting edge coverage of the most important theoretical frameworks and methodological innovations Contains original contributions from a global group of leading researchers from 18 countries Explores topics related to translator and workplace characteristics including machine translation creativity ergonomic perspectives and cognitive effort and competence training and interpreting such as multimodal processing neurocognitive optimization process oriented pedagogies and conceptual change Maps out future directions for cognition and translation studies as well as areas in need of more research within this dynamic field

Psycholinguistic and Cognitive Inquiries into Translation and Interpreting Aline Ferreira, John W.

Schwietter, 2015-01-15 Psycholinguistic and Cognitive Inquiries into Translation and Interpreting presents perspectives and original studies that aim to diversify traditional approaches in translation and interpreting research and improve the quality and generalizability of the field The volume is divided into two parts Part I includes an introductory discussion on the input of psycholinguistics and cognitive science to translation and interpreting along with two state of the art chapters that discuss valid experimental designs while critically reviewing and building on existing work Part II subsequently presents original studies which explore the performance of expert and novice translators using a variety of methodologies such as eye tracking keystroke logging retrospective protocols and post editing machine translation It also presents contributions for exploratory studies on interpreting and for testing several constructs such as language competence and the role of expertise redundancy and working memory capacity This volume is intended to act as a valuable reference for scholars practitioners translators graduate and advanced undergraduate students and anyone wishing to gain an overview of current issues in translation and interpreting from psycholinguistic and cognitive domains Multilingual Discourse Production Svenja Kranich, Viktor

Becher, Steffen Höder, Juliane House, 2011-11-09 This volume presents discourse production in multilingual contexts as a specific type of language contact situation Translation may be seen as the prototypical type of multilingual discourse production other types would include parallel text production in different languages e g for websites or the production of versions more loosely connected with the source text When divergent communicative norms and conventions come into contact in any of these types of text production one may find that such conventions transcend established language boundaries potentially leading to the emergence of new genres This volume represents the first collection of papers that focus on the specific properties of language contact through multilingual discourse production It brings together approaches by historical linguists language contact researchers and translation scholars thus presenting the topic in its full variety and providing valuable suggestions for further research in this emerging field of study Tracks and Treks in Translation

Studies Catherine Way, Sonia Vandepitte, Reine Meylaerts, Magdalena Bartoń, 2013-08-22 The Selected Papers from the 6th Congress Tracks and Treks in Translation Studies TS held at the University of Leuven Belgium in 2010 congregated scholars and practitioners presenting their ideas and research in this thriving domain This volume includes fifteen carefully selected articles which represent the diversity and breadth of the topics dealt with in Translation Studies today increasingly bolstered by its interaction with other disciplines At the same time it aims to provide a balance between process and product oriented research and training and professional practice The authors cover both Translating and Interpreting from a myriad of approaches touching upon topics such as creativity pleasant voice paratext and translator intervention project based methodologies revision corpora and individual translation styles to name but a few This volume will hopefully contribute to further fruitful interaction and cohesion which are essential to the international status of TS
