Understanding Technological Innovation A Socio Technical Approach:

Understanding Technological Innovation Patrice Flichy, 2008-01-01 Researchers and students in the management of innovation will find in this book an analytical framework that articulates technological innovation processes and the creation of new markets. The multiplication of examples and cases helps the reader in better grasping the different aspects of the proposed framework. The focus on information and communication technologies is of high relevance; it enables the reader to put present developments in perspective and this is especially relevant when discussing ascending innovation and the role of users and uses. Philippe Laredo, Universities of Paris Est and Manchester, Coordinator of the European PRIME Network of Excellence. Patrice Flichy takes the reader on a fascinating tour of the literature on technological innovation. Innovation is situated within the frames of functioning and use, offering rich insights into the strategies, tactics, improvisations and learning which occur through time. He emphasises the dreams and musings of inventors, novelists and the popular media to show how they mediate new technological frames of reference. This book offers an excellent synthesis of the literature and an original historical account of innovation with special reference to information and communication technologies. Robin Mansell, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK. In Understanding Technological Innovation, Patrice Flichy's interest is in the genesis of technology. He describes the perspectives and interpretive schemes deployed by historians, sociologists and economists in attempts to understand the determinants, including chance, of the particular forms of products and systems that have come to dominate the market and play so important a role, some would claim dominant, in our lives. It is rare to find in one volume so informed a critique of the essential writings of historians of technology, contemporary sociologists and economic historians. His own special interest lies in the development of information technology and he puts his expertise to good use in revealing and contrasting the different perspectives and claims of these three schools. Louis L. Bucciarelli, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, US. Working at the interface between interactionist sociology, history and economics, Flichy provides us with a language for charting the evolution of new technologies as generic technical capabilities are explored, perhaps inspired by visions of societal change and become stabilised and attached to particular conceptions of use. He offers us an integrated perspective on technological innovation, addressing the influence of history and social context whilst remaining open to the often unanticipated dynamism and surprises that may surround both these trajectories. This book will provide a thoughtful contribution to current debates. The critical literature review will provide a rich and convenient source for advanced teaching and research training. Robin Williams, The University of Edinburgh, UK. How do the social sciences address the question of innovation and the relationship between technology and use? This is the core point of this book, which examines critically diverse works in sociology, history, economics and anthropology in order to formulate a new approach. This reflection is essentially of a general nature, though the cases used to illustrate the analysis are drawn primarily from the field of ICT. Patrice Flichy studies how the socio-technological actions of the different actors, particularly designers, and users are organized within the same frames of reference He also introduces a new element into the model by demonstrating how time is involved in technological choices Understanding Technological Innovation will be essential reading for advanced teaching and research training in the fields of science and technology studies and media and communication studies

The Oxford Handbook of Law, Regulation and Technology Roger Brownsword, Eloise Scotford, Karen Yeung, 2017 The variety pace and power of technological innovations that have emerged in the 21st Century have been breathtaking These technological developments which include advances in networked information and communications biotechnology neurotechnology nanotechnology robotics and environmental engineering technology have raised a number of vital and complex questions Although these technologies have the potential to generate positive transformation and help address grand societal challenges the novelty associated with technological innovation has also been accompanied by anxieties about their risks and destabilizing effects Is there a potential harm to human health or the environment What are the ethical implications Do this innovations erode or antagonize values such as human dignity privacy democracy or other norms underpinning existing bodies of law and regulation These technological developments have therefore spawned a nascent but growing body of law and technology scholarship broadly concerned with exploring the legal social and ethical dimensions of technological innovation This handbook collates the many and varied strands of this scholarship focusing broadly across a range of new and emerging technology and a vast array of social and policy sectors through which leading scholars in the field interrogate the interfaces between law emerging technology and regulation Structured in five parts the handbook I establishes the collection of essays within existing scholarship concerned with law and technology as well as regulatory governance II explores the relationship between technology development by focusing on core concepts and values which technological developments implicate III studies the challenges for law in responding to the emergence of new technologies examining how legal norms doctrine and institutions have been shaped challenged and destabilized by technology and even how technologies have been shaped by legal regimes IV provides a critical exploration of the implications of technological innovation examining the ways in which technological innovation has generated challenges for regulators in the governance of technological development and the implications of employing new technologies as an instrument of regulatory governance V explores various interfaces between law regulatory governance and new technologies across a range of key social domains

Progressive Enlightenment Leslie Tomory, 2012 An argument that the gas industry was the first integrated large scale technological network and that it signaled a new wave of industrial innovation In Progressive Enlightenment Leslie Tomory examines the origins of the gaslight industry from invention to consolidation as a large integrated urban network Tomory argues that gas was the first integrated large scale technological network a designation usually given to the railways He shows how the first gas network was constructed and stabilized through the introduction of new management structures the use of technical controls and the application of means to constrain the behavior of the users of gas lighting Tomory begins by describing the contributions of pneumatic chemistry and industrial distillation to the development of gas lighting then explores the bifurcation between the Continental and British traditions in distillation technology He examines the establishment and consolidation of the new industry by the Birmingham firm Boulton Watt and describes the deployment of the network strategy by the entrepreneur Frederick Winsor Tomory argues that the gas industry represented a new wave of technological innovation in industry because of its dependence on formal scientific research its need for large amounts of capital and its reliance on business organization beyond small firms and partnerships all of which signaled a departure from the artisanal nature and limited deployment of inventions earlier in the Industrial Revolution Gas lighting was the first important realization of the Enlightenment dream of science in the service of industry

Social Influences on Information and Communication Technology Innovations Tatnall, Arthur, 2012-05-31 It has been over twenty years since developments in actor network theory were first written on paper Since then the Information and Communication Technologies ICT community has begun to discover the power of using actor network theory as an explanatory framework for much of its research This research community has come to an understanding that information systems are of necessity socio technical in nature and require a socio technical approach to their investigation Thanks to developments in actor network theory researchers can now approach people and technology as one single entity that gives support to social influences on technological innovations Social Influences on Information and Communication Technology Innovations discusses in great detail the use of actor network theory in offering explanations for socio technical phenomena focusing greatly on information communication technologies Implementation and use of information and communication technologies inevitably involves the interactions of both technology and people This publication facilitates international growth in the body of research investigating the value of using actor network theory as a means of understanding socio technical phenomena and technological innovation

Making Pictorial Print Alison Hedley, 2021-12-21 At the end of the nineteenth century print media dominated British popular culture produced in greater variety and on a larger scale than ever before Within decades new visual and auditory media had ushered in a mechanized milieu displacing print from its position at the heart of cultural life During this period of intense change illustrated magazines maintained a central position in the media landscape by transforming their letterpress orientation into a visual and multimodal one Ultimately this transformation was important for the new media cultures of the twentieth and twenty first centuries Making Pictorial Print recovers this chapter in the history of new media applying concepts from media theory and the digital humanities to analyse four popular late Victorian magazines the Illustrated London News the Graphic Pearson s Magazine and the Strand and the scrapbook media that appropriated them Using the concept of media literacy these case studies demonstrate the ways in which periodical design aesthetics affected the terms of engagement presented to readers creating opportunities for them to participate in and even contribute to popular culture Shaped by publishers advertisers and readers themselves the pages of these periodicals document the emergence of modern mass culture as we know it and offer insight into the new media of our digital present

Engineering, Social Sciences, and the Humanities Steen Hyldgaard Christensen, Anders Buch, Eddie Conlon, Christelle Didier, Carl Mitcham, Mike Murphy, 2023-01-16 This book presents a critical examination of conversations between engineering social sciences and the humanities asking whether their conversations have come of age These conversations are important because ultimately their outcome have real world consequences in engineering education and practice and for the social and material world we inhabit Taken together the 21 chapters provide scholarly argued responses to the following questions Why are these conversations important for engineering for social sciences and for the humanities Are there key places in practice in the curriculum and in institutions where these conversations can develop best What are the barriers to successful conversations What proposals can be made for deepening these conversations for the future How would we know that the conversations have come of age and who gets to decide The book appeals to scholarly audiences that come together through their work in engineering education and practice The chapters of the book probes and access the meetings and conversations and they explore new avenues for strengthening dialogues that transcend narrow disciplinary confines and divisions The volume offers a rich collection of descriptive resources and theoretical tools that will be useful for researchers of engineering practices and for those aiming to reshape the engineering lifeworld through new policies The book depicts the current state of the art of the most visible SSH contributions to shaping engineering practices as well as a map of research gaps and policy problems that still need to be explored Dr Ir Lavinia Marin TU Delft Electrical Engineering and Philosophy
