Discourses on Religious Diversity Martin D. Stringer, 2016-05-23 Religious diversity is an ever present and increasingly visible reality in cities across the world It is an issue of immediate concern to city leaders and members of religious communities but do we really know what ordinary members of the public the people who live in the city really think about it Major news items inter religious violence and notorious public events often lead to negative views being expressed especially among those who would not consider themselves to have a religious identity of their own Martin Stringer explores the highly complex series of discourses around religion and religious diversity that are held by ordinary members of the city discourses that are often contradictory in themselves and discourses that show that attitudes to religion vary considerably depending on context and wider local or national narratives Drawing on examples from UK particularly Birmingham one of the UK s most diverse cities Europe and the United States Stringer offers some practical suggestions for ways in which

discourses of religious diversity can be managed in the future Students in the fields of religious studies sociology anthropology and urban studies practitioners involved in inter religious debates and church and other faith leaders and politicians should all find this book an invaluable addition to ongoing debates The Changing Soul of Europe Helena Vilaça, Enzo Pace, Inger Furseth, Per Pettersson, 2016-03-23 This book paves the way for a more enlarged discussion on religion and migration phenomena in countries of Northern and Southern Europe From a comparative perspective these are regions with very different religious traditions and different historical State Church relations Although official religion persisted longer in Nordic Protestant countries than in South Mediterranean countries levels of secularization are higher In the last decades both Northern and Southern Europe have received strong flows of newcomers From this perspective the book presents through various theoretical lenses and empirical researches the impact mobility and consequent religious transnationalism have on multiple aspects of culture and social life in societies where the religious landscapes are increasingly diverse The chapters demonstrate that we are dealing with complex scenarios different contexts of reception different countries of origin various ethnicities and religious traditions Catholics Orthodox and Evangelical Christians Muslims Buddhists Having become plural spaces our societies tend to be far more concerned with the issue of social integration rather than with that of social identities reconstruction in society as a whole often ignoring that today religion manifests itself as a plurality of religions In short what are the implications of newcomers for the religious life of Europe and for the redesign of its soul Contesting Secularism Anders Berg-Sørensen, 2016-05-13 As we enter the twenty first century the role of religion within civic society has become an issue of central concern across the world The complex trends of secularism multiculturalism and the rise of religiously motivated violence raise fundamental questions about the relationship between political institutions civic culture and religious groups Contesting Secularism represents a major intervention into this debate Drawing together contributions from leading scholars from across the world it analyses how secularism functions as a political doctrine in different national contexts put under pressure by globalisation In doing so it presents different models for the relationship between political institutions and religious groups challenging the reader to be more aware of assumptions within their own cultural context and raises alternative possibilities for the structure of democratic multi faith societies Through its inter disciplinary and comparative approach Contesting Secularism sets a new agenda for thinking about the place of religion in the public sphere of twenty first century societies It is essential reading for policymakers as well as for scholars and students in political science law sociology and religious studies
