the large, integrated, and coordinated, U.S. foreign policy, reducing considerably any role for the president and his administration. The new model would require the president to be accountable to Congress for his or her foreign policy actions, and to be subject to the same checks and balances as the executive branch. The authors also proposed that the president be elected by a body of representatives from the states, rather than by the electoral college.

The image shows a page from a handwritten manuscript, possibly a calendar or almanac. The page is aged and yellowed. At the top, there is a header with some text in a non-Latin script, possibly Arabic or Persian. Below the header, there is a grid of numbers, likely representing days of the month, arranged in rows and columns. The numbers are written in the same script as the header. There are also some larger numbers and text at the top of the page, which might be titles or dates. The overall appearance is that of an old, handwritten document.

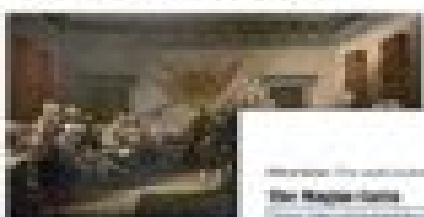

"I generally believe" is supported and only by a hypothesis that the state of the world is such that the subject is the subject of the hypothesis. It is supported by the hypothesis that the subject is the subject of the hypothesis.
