The Unkind Companion Learning To Live With Loss:

The Unkind Companion Marlo Peddycord Francis, 2007-06 Not only does she teach us what it means to trust God when everything inside wants to curl up and quit but also what it means to develop a heart where peace and pain can coexist within the love of Christ The Unkind Companion is a testimony of God's grace and abundant provision in an arena that too often leaves the broken hearted weary and defeated Let Marlo's experience encourage you to reach for the glorious future that God has awaiting those who will step out and believe that after loss there can be abundant life

When Your Child Is Hurting Whitwer, Glynnis, Living with Grief Sara Mathews, 2025-11-17 Living with Grief provides a guide to how to live when others have died Written by a therapist and counsellor who specialises in Grief Loss and Bereavement it helps readers gain insight into some of the processes that might be happening when things feel overwhelming Following an effective Q A framework it offers a valuable dip in and out approach with good signposting to guidance on all the questions that those touched by grief need to know Organised into short manageable chapters the book provides strategies to offer understanding and compassion to gently encourage readers to think about what is going on for them during this time It introduces a diverse and inclusive cast of characters who are going through grief themselves in various different circumstances to reflect modern culture and the issues people face It also includes coverage about the social context in which the griever lives and the role of social media and how that can play into competitive and performative aspects of grief This book acts as a compassionate companion for those figuring out how to live with grief It is also valuable reading for counsellors mental health professionals and other health and social care professionals
