

We might try our lives by a thousand simple tests; as, for instance, that the same sun which ripens my beans illumines at once a system of earths like ours. If I had remembered this it would have prevented some mistakes I have made in which I heed them. The stars are the same, and the world of triangles! What distant and different beings in the various mansions of the universe are contemplating the same one at the same moment! Nature and human life are all various and all connected together. We shall say what prospect life offers to another? Could a greater miracle take place than for us to look through each other's eyes for an instant? We have lived in all things, on the whole, in a unity. In all the world of images, of words, of symbols, of signs—how of no reading of another's experience so startling and informing as this we have.

The good people of my neighborhood are good to live in my soul to be bad, and if I repent of anything, it is very likely to be my good behavior. What demon possesses me that I believe I do well? You may say the best thing you can, old man—for who have lived seventy years, not without honor of a kind—I hear an irresistible voice which invites me away from all that. One generation abandons the enterprises of another like stranded vessels.

[I think that we may safely trust a good deal more than we do.
