

It holds 13 liters of fuel (1.5 liters more than the previous model) and has a lockable filler cap. The motor-cycle style seat is padded and long enough for comfortable two-up riding.

The decompressor linked to the kickstart system makes it easier to start the big, single cylinder engine spinning over and fired up.

The new-style fuel tank drops down around the cylinder head and incorporates enlarged air scoops that direct a cooling airflow around the engine.

Electronic capacitor discharge ignition aids starting by producing a hot spark even at low rpm. It is pre-set for optimum ignition timing throughout the range and needs no adjustments or maintenance.

A new, larger headlamp housing houses a bright, quartz-halogen lighting unit for night time cruising at any speed.

New front forks have stronger, 41mm diameter shockbars and rubber boots to keep out grit and grime. They provide 215mm of smooth wheel travel.

A center-linking front drive sprocket eliminates transmission backlash while a new shifter segment provides more positive gear-changing through the five speed box.

Rear suspension now uses a box section, high-tensile steel swinging arm, with dampers for the guided shock absorber. The shock is adjustable for both damping and preload. Wheel travel is 215mm.

Aluminium, high-tensile wheel rims carry special "all-terrain" tyres that give the XT600 a genuine "dual purpose" capability. Disc brakes, front and rear, are powerful and predictable in all weather conditions.
