The Cultivator & Country Gentleman ,1871 Unshackled: Education for Freedom, Student Achievement, and Personal Emancipation Greg Wiggan,Lakia Scott,Marcia Watson,Richard Reynolds,2014-04-03 Harnessing conceptual inspiration through the work of Harriet Tubman and Queen Nanny the Maroon of Jamaica this book explores the historical and contemporary role that education has and can continually play as an instrument of personal and group liberation The book discusses the early formations of the Transatlantic Slave Trade the enslavement of native populations and the subsequent development of the Underground Railroad and Maroon societies in the Caribbean and Americas as systems of liberation It investigates the development and maintenance of racial gendered and class stratifi

cation and provides a personal path to freedom as a context for a broader discussion on using education as a mechanism for dismantling the effects of colonization miseducation and social psychological domination in schools and society As a contemporary issue it presents an in depth analysis of the Tucson Unified School District in Arizona and the controversy surrounding its ethnic studies program as an example of one of the contested sites of curriculum development and student liberation Additionally it discusses high performing charter schools as an alternative model of education which may help to provide a systematic way of unshackling institutional barriers and oppression Ultimately this book acknowledges that today the road to freedom is still one we must all travel as miseducation school failure school dropout unemployment underemployment poverty neighborhood violence incarceration and a growing prison industrial complex are all reminders of the work that still must be accomplished Like those who historically sacrificed their lives to gain freedom and an education today with the lingering effects of institutionalized systems of domination education must continue to be an instrument of social mobility and liberation if indeed we are to make schools and society more humane and inclusive towards those who are still waiting to be unshackled The book presents implications regarding the treaties on education for freedom as a school reform and public policy topic

Uninvited Neighbors Herbert G. Ruffin, 2014-03-28 In the late 1960s African American protests and Black Power demonstrations in California's Santa Clara County including what's now called Silicon Valley took many observers by surprise After all as far back as the 1890s the California constitution had legally abolished most forms of racial discrimination and subsequent legal reform had surely taken care of the rest White Americans might even have wondered where the black activists in the late sixties were coming from because beginning with the writings of Frederick Jackson Turner the most influential histories of the American West simply left out African Americans or later portrayed them as a passive and insignificant presence Uninvited Neighbors puts black people back into the picture and dispels cherished myths about California's racial history Reaching from the Spanish era to the valley's emergence as a center of the high tech industry this is the first comprehensive history of the African American experience in the Santa Clara Valley Author Herbert G. Ruffin II's study presents the black experience in a new way with a focus on how despite their smaller numbers and obscure presence African Americans in the South Bay forged communities that had a regional and national impact disproportionate to their population As the region industrialized and spawned suburbs during and after World War II its black citizens built institutions such as churches social clubs and civil rights organizations and challenged socioeconomic restrictions Ruffin explores the quest of the area's black people for the postwar American Dream The book also addresses the scattering of the black community during the region's late yet rapid urban growth after 1950 which led to the creation of several distinct black suburban communities clustered in metropolitan San Jose Ruffin treats people of color as agents of their own development and survival in a region that was always multiracial and where slavery and Jim Crow did not predominate but where the white embrace of racial justice and equality was often insincere The result offers a new view of the intersection of African American history and the history of the American West
