OUR PLAY TONIGHT

Our music is Appalachian Spring by Aaron Copland and Once Upon A Time in the West by Ennio Morricone.

The sassafras is a tree of the laurel family common in the Eastern United States. In early American history, the roots of the tree were an important medicinal commodity, being used as a herb tea for the treatment of colds and as a tonic. The bark was used as a treatment for ague.

It is a pest to anyone clearing the land as the rootstock goes very deep, and the smallest bit left means another vigorous growth. No doubt pioneers, like those in our play tonight, would clear acres of sassafras only to find it growing again. Life must have been difficult, trying to eke out a living in inhospitable territory.

The romantic view of "the West" is sent up in our presentation tonight, and we hope you enjoy this light hearted look at what the West was never like.

S.V.D.

OUR NEXT PLAY - OCTOBER 3rd-8th DANGEROUS CORNER

Robert and Freda Caplan have been entertaining family and business friends and, after a pleasant dinner, the chat centres on the somewhat mysterious death of Robert's brother Martin. A chance remark creates a feeling of doubt. Was it suicide? Was it murder? And what about the missing money? Robert insists that everyone tells the absolute truth, no matter what the consequences are. Perhaps it is sometimes better to let sleeping dogs lie!

Jim Raze Senior directs the play and his cast includes Sonia Dunlop, Monika Eastland, John Jones, Dorothy Monk, Susan Walton.
