Airman's Information Manual, 1977      Missionaries, Indigenous Peoples and Cultural Exchange Patricia Grimshaw, Andrew May, 2009-11-03 Presents fresh insights into the relationships between missions and indigenous peoples and the outcomes of mission activities in the processes of imperial conquest and colonisation This book focuses on missions across the British Empire including India Africa Asia the Pacific within transnational and comparative perspectives      The Reserve Marine, 1958      The Communion of Women Elizabeth E. Prevost, 2010-03-18 In the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries a number of British women left home to follow a call to the African mission field Women's involvement in Protestant foreign missions during this time grew out of organized efforts to professionalize women's social services to promote white women's distinct ability to emancipate heathen women and to consolidate the religious framework of the British Empire Motivated women could therefore pursue their vocation in a skilled independent capacity confident in the transformative power of the gospel and its institutional counterparts the Christian home school and clinic Yet women's missions did not transplant British paradigms easily onto African soil Instead missionary women encountered competing forms of culture and knowledge that caused them to approach evangelism as a series of negotiations and to rethink preconceived notions of race gender and religion The outcome was a feminized collaborative framework of Christianity which fostered new opportunities for solidarity and authority among British and African women So powerful were these individual encounters that they decentred collective representations of empire patriarchy progress and civilization Missionaries accordingly focused their attentions not only on the overseas mission field but on the British state and church as sites of regeneration emancipation and reform attempting to build a corporate body around women's Christian authority that would ameliorate the trauma of imperialism and war Elizabeth Prevost looks at missionaries as the products as well as the agents of the globalization of Christianity during a time of rapid change at the local regional and international level Anglican women in Madagascar Uganda and the British metropole form the basis for this story Using a rich and largely untapped base of archival and published sources and encompassing a wide scope of geographical social political and theological contexts Prevost brings together the fine grain and the broad strokes of the global interconnections of Christianity and feminism
