Abstract The authors of this study investigated the effects of a 12-week, supervised, group-based, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical and psychological health of 100 sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to improve cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and body composition. The results of the study showed that the program was effective in improving cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and body composition. The authors concluded that a supervised, group-based, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program is an effective means of improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
