Voices Of Women Historians Voices Of Women Historians:

Voices of Women Historians Eileen Boris, Nupur Chaudhuri, 1999-09-22 The Coordinating Council for Women in History evolved from a cohort of women historians who turned their scholarly focus to the recovery of women's experiences. In so doing they created and legitimated the field of women's history. The contributors to this volume, former CCWH officers, mark the 30th anniversary of the organization while commemorating three decades of feminist activism and scholarship. Recording the diverse paths women have taken to become historians, the essays contained in this book describe how a particular group of women negotiated the often competing demands of being a woman, a professional, and a political activist from the turbulent 1960s through the challenges of the 1990s. But beyond the celebration of personal and professional progress, this collection contributes to the emerging historiography of women's history and the literature on women in the professions. Reshaping Women's History Julie A. Gallagher, Barbara Winslow, 2018-09-25 Award-winning women scholars from nontraditional backgrounds have often negotiated an academic track that leads through figurative and sometimes literal minefields. Their life stories offer inspiration but also describe heartrending struggles and daunting obstacles. Reshaping Women's History presents autobiographical essays by eighteen accomplished scholar-activists who persevered through poverty or abuse, medical malpractice or family disownment, civil war or genocide. As they illuminate their own unique circumstances, the authors also address issues all too familiar to women in the academy: financial instability, the need for mentors, explaining gaps in resumes caused by outside events, and coping with gendered family demands, biases, and expectations. Eye-opening and candid, Reshaping Women's History shows how adversity and the triumph over it enriches scholarship and spurs extraordinary efforts to affect social change.

Landscapes and Voices of the Great War Angela K. Smith, Krista Cowman, 2017-02-03 This volume aims to provide a wider view of First World War experience through focusing on landscapes less commonly considered in historiography and on voices that have remained on the margins of popular understanding of the war. The landscape of the western front was captured during the conflict in many different ways in photographs, paintings, and print. The most commonly replicated voicing of contemporary attitudes towards the war is that of initial enthusiasm giving way to disillusionment and a sense of overwhelming futility. Investigations of the many components of war experience drawn from social and cultural history have looked to landscapes and voices beyond the frontline as a means of foregrounding different perspectives on the war. Not all of the voices presented here opposed the war, and not all of the landscapes were comprised of trenches or flanked by barbed wire. Collectively they combine to offer further fresh insights into the multiplicity of war experience, an alternate space to the familiar tropes of mud and mayhem.

Jennifer Banning Tomás, 2025-11-05 Women's history traveled a long and fascinating path before it became a respected and recognized academic field in twentieth century America. This book explores the field's development as a multiracial and multigenerational effort going beyond the careers of individual women historians to focus on how the discipline itself took shape. Focusing on the foundational period between 1900 and 1968, Jennifer Banning Tomás shines a light on the work performed by archivists and professional historians that gave women's history its own identity and legitimacy. The women in laid the groundwork for the field's remarkable expansion during the final wave of twentieth century feminism after 1970 when a genuine movement for women's history emerged. Their contributions made the later success of women's history possible. Tomás reveals the dedication and vision that turned women's history into the thriving influential field it is today.

Women and the Historical Enterprise in America: Gender, Race and the Politics of Memory Julie Des Jardins, 2004-07-21 In Women and the Historical Enterprise in America Julie Des Jardins explores American women's participation in the practice of history from the late nineteenth century through the end of World War II, a period in which history became professionalized as an increasingly masculine field of scientific inquiry. Des Jardins shows how women nevertheless transformed the profession during these years in their roles as writers, preservationists, educators, archivists, government workers, and social activists. Des Jardins explores the work of a wide variety of women historians, both professional and amateur, popular and scholarly, conservative and radical, white and nonwhite. Although their ability to earn professional credentials and gain research access to official documents was limited by their gender and often by their race, these historians addressed important new questions and represented social groups traditionally omitted from the historical record, such as workers, African Americans, Native Americans, and religious minorities. Assessing the historical contributions of Mary Beard, Zora Neale Hurston, Angie Debo, Mari Sandoz, Lucy Salmon, Mary McLeod Bethune, Dorothy Porter, Nellie Neilson, and many others, Des Jardins argues that women working within the broadest confines of the historical enterprise collectively brought the new perspectives of social and cultural history to the study of a multifaceted American past. In the process, they not only developed the field of women's history but also influenced the creation of our national memory in the twentieth century.

Gender and Change Alexandra Shepard, Garthine Walker, 2009-06-08 Through a collection of essays by leading scholars on women's history and gender history, Gender and Change Agency Chronology and Periodisation questions conventional chronologies while reassessing the relationship between gender, agency, continuity, and change. Celebrates 20 years of the publication of the journal Gender History. Reflects the extent to which gender analysis suggests alternatives to conventional periodisation. For example, whether the European Renaissance can be classified as the same period of great cultural advance when viewed from the perspective of women. Offers innovative historiographical and theoretical reflection on approaches to gender, agency, and change.

Voice of the Past Paul Thompson, 2000-03-16 In this revised edition of Paul Thompson's successful book, he traces oral history through its own past and weighs up the recent achievements of this international movement He challenges myths of historical scholarship and looks at the use of oral sources by the historian The author offers advice on designing a project discusses reliability of oral evidence considers the context of the development of historical writing including its social function and looks at memory the self and the use of drama and therapy This new edition has been substantially revised and updated and includes an expanded discussion of narrative approaches and new technology used in the recording of information Reviews from the second edition of Voice of the Past Oral History Paul Thompson is a passionate and convincing crusader in the cause of oral history The Times Educational Supplement It must be rare in modern academic life to replace your own unrivalled book after 10 years with an even better one but he has done so His new material on memory and the self and on drama as therapy should be read by literary critics in their infancy The Independent the first book to combine a theory of oral history the technical processes involved and a road map of where oral evidence fits into the landscape of western historiography American Historical Review National Parks and the Woman's Voice Polly Welts Kaufman, 2006 In this updated study Polly Kaufman discovers that staff are no longer able to fulfill the National Park Service mission without outside support Storia della storiografia , 2005
