Believers: Faith in Human Nature Melvin Konner, 2019-09-10 An anthropologist examines the nature of religiosity and how it shapes and benefits humankind Believers is a scientist's answer to attacks on faith by some well meaning scientists and philosophers It is a firm rebuke of the Four Horsemen Richard Dawkins Daniel Dennett Sam Harris and Christopher Hitchens known for writing about religion as something irrational and ultimately harmful Anthropologist

Melvin Konner who was raised as an Orthodox Jew but has lived his adult life without such faith explores the psychology development brain science evolution and even genetics of the varied religious impulses we experience as a species Conceding that faith is not for everyone he views religious people with a sympathetic eye his own upbringing his apprenticeship in the trance dance religion of the African Bushmen and his friends and explorations in Christian Buddhist Hindu Muslim and other faiths have all shaped his perspective Faith has always manifested itself in different ways some revelatory and comforting some kind and good some ecumenical and cosmopolitan some bigoted coercive and violent But the future Konner argues will both produce more nonbelievers and incline the religious among us holding their own by having larger families to increasingly reject prejudice and aggression A colorful weave of personal stories of religious and irreligious encounters as well as new scientific research Believers shows us that religion does much good as well as undoubted harm and that for at least a large minority of humanity the belief in things unseen neither can nor should go away
