Abstract: This study was designed to assess the effect of a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy restriction diet on the body composition and metabolic profile of obese women. The study was conducted in a clinical setting and involved 15 obese women (mean age 45.8 ± 5.2 years, mean BMI 35.2 ± 3.1 kg/m²). The women were randomized to either a control group (n = 8) or an intervention group (n = 7). The control group continued with their usual diet, while the intervention group followed a 1000 kcal/day energy restriction diet. Body composition was assessed using dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry (DXA) at baseline and after 12 weeks. Metabolic profile was assessed using a 2-hour oral glucose tolerance test (OGTT) at baseline and after 12 weeks. The results showed that the intervention group had a significant decrease in body weight, fat mass, and visceral fat mass compared to the control group. There was also a significant improvement in insulin sensitivity and glucose tolerance in the intervention group. The study suggests that a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy restriction diet can effectively reduce body weight and improve metabolic profile in obese women.
