Woody Plant Biotechnology M.R. Ahuja, 2012-12-06 This volume is based on a workshop on Woody Plant Biotechnology held at the Institute of Forest Genetics USDA Forest Service Placerville California USA 15 19 October 1989 This workshop was organized by the IUFRO International Union of Forestry Research Organizations Working Party S2 04 07 Somatic Cell Genetics and supported by the NATO Scientific Affairs Division Advanced Research Workshop ARW 692 89 Programme This was the second workshop of the IUFRO Working Party on Somatic Cell Genetics The first meeting of this Working Party was held at the Institute of Forest Genetics and Forest Tree Breeding Federal Research Centre for Forestry and Forest Products Grosshansdorf Federal Republic of Germany The purpose of the present workshop was to bring together scientists from different countries of the world for discussions in the area of woody plant biotechnology Tissues from woody plants in particular forest trees are in general difficult to grow and differentiate in vitro However recent advances in tissue culture technology have paved the way for successful culture of organs tissues cells and protoplasts of woody plants By employing juvenile tissues plant regeneration has been accomplished in a number of woody plant species On the other hand clonal propagation of mature trees in particular conifers is still very difficult by tissue culture Biotechnology, Forestry and Forest Products Lara Wiggert, 1993 Biotechnology in Agriculture, 1986-May 1992 Charles N. Bebee, 1992

Bibliographies and Literature of Agriculture, 1990 Biotechnology Lara Wiggert, 1995-08 134 citations on the topic of forestry forest products bioengineering DNA manipulation genes recombinant etc Most citations have abstracts Contains author subject indices Quick Bibliography Series, 1976 Biotechnology, Plant Nutrition Other Than Nitrogen Robert D. Warmbrodt, 1991 NATO Science Programme Yearbook Compendium, 1985-1989, 1989 DNA Polymorphisms as Disease Markers D.J. Galton, G. Assmann, 2012-12-06 The purpose of this workshop was to assess the value of DNA polymorphisms for the prediction diagnosis or elucidation of aetiology for common metabolic diseases such as diabetes hyperlipidaemia and atherosclerosis The advent of recombinant DNA techniques has produced an explosion in knowledge of restriction site polymorphisms and hypervariable sequences around candidate genes for such common metabolic diseases as atherosclerosis hyperlipidaemia and diabetes mellitus These diseases are the major causes of morbidity and mortality in Western societies today Since 1983 it has become apparent that there is much more variation in the frequency and sites of these DNA polymorphisms in human populations than was initially appreciated and that the majority of these DNA polymorphisms are only linkage markers for the disease Consequently it was considered timely for laboratories involved in the mapping of these DNA mutations to meet together to discuss the implications of their studies The main issues are whether such DNA polymorphisms will lead to an identification of major aetiological loci and which are the best techniques to achieve this What is the cause of the differences in frequencies of such polymorphisms amongst world populations Are such studies best conducted in homogeneous populations or in pedigrees Are haplotypes though more laborious to construct a better way to proceed than analysis of single site polymorphisms What are the consensus polymorphic sites that relate to the common metabolic diseases of diabetes atherosclerosis and the hyperlipidaemias The real need now to discuss the theoretical background behind the Vaccines Anthony C. Allison, Gregory Gregoriadis, George Poste, 2012-12-06 The success of vaccination in controlling infectious diseases is well documented However low profitability expense and liability have hindered research and development of vaccines Recently increasing realization enhanced by the AIDS pandemic of the need to overcome such difficulties has led to steps being taken by national authorities non profit and commercial organizations to resolve them This has been facilitated by developments in recombinant DNA techniques the advent of monoclonal anti bodies and progress in the understanding of the immunological structure of proteins which have laid the foundation of a new generation of vaccines Such vaccines are defined at the molecular level can elicit immune responses controlling infectious organisms and are therefore potentially free of the problems encountered in conventional ones Unfortunately subunit and synthetic peptide vaccines are often only weakly or non immunogenic However developments in both antigen production and immuno potentiation of weak antigens have opened new avenues with exciting prospects for vaccine design
