Latona,1994 The Age of Transformation; World 3.0 Hasan Canpolat,2023 Great economic revolutions in history occur when new production technologies are combined with new communication and energy systems The revolutions of energy production and communication shape the nature of everything how civilizations and societies are organized how the fruits of the economy are distributed how political power is shaped and used and how social relations are conducted The ability of human beings to domesticate animals and settle down constitutes the first of the revolutionary developments in human history The agrarian economy that emerged from this revolution was based on the land and the muscular power of animals and humans the main source of energy needed to cultivate the land The revolutionary significance of the emergence of collective living is the formation of surplus value based on the agricultural economy for the first time in history Thanks to this agricultural surplus value the first state structures of history the Agrarian states that is State 1.0 emerged After a period of agrarian economics lasting about 10 000 thousand years the second revolutionary development in human history is the industrial age which began in the 18th century and is based on the energy of fossil fuels The industrialization revolution characterized by mechanization and mass production fundamentally transformed the state social and economic structures of the agricultural period In the current period of humanity after the age of agriculture and industrialization the world has entered a third period of revolutionary transformation The reason why we characterize this transformation as a new epoch and not a new stage of the industrial economy is due to the fact that the central nature of the industrial economy is changing in the period in which we live What determined the central nature of industrial economies was the necessity for carbon based fossil fuels to be found only in certain locations and transported from where they were located to large centers of mass production As a result of this necessity in systems based on private markets companies have given rise to large and in economic systems based on public markets production and distribution by the state have been centralized and in industrialized economies top down large organizations and large accumulations of capital have emerged Now however it is becoming clear that the Central Energy Based Economy is dying in the new era that is emerging based on and based on the Distributed Nature of Energy Production Communication and Money Thanks to the emerging technologies in the current period the process of the emergence of a decentralized distributed economy has very important challenges in itself Just as the industrial age radically changed all the structures of the agricultural age that preceded it so now the capitalist economic model created by the industrial age and the model of democracy and the nation state integrated into this model are disintegrating and the nature of each is transforming in itself The global system is in decline the human relationship with the environment oppressed by industrialization is being restored This great transformation is bringing about a decentralized and distributed age that will fundamentally change all the economic political and social structures of the industrial age The era of Earth 3.0 This decentralized Distributed Age holds many revolutionary transformations States, Markets and Wars in Global History Giulio Sapelli, 2023 This wide ranging book focuses on the economic and political changes that have taken place between the advent of globalization and the COVID 19 pandemic and assesses how this may bring about a profound reconfiguration of the global political system Sapelli considers a range of developments in different spheres from international to national politics military aggressions and worldwide political trends such as the rise of populism to illuminate the moment of neoliberal crisis in which we now live He argues that Europe and its institutions in particular no longer demonstrate a model of diplomacy and statesmanship with the rise of technocratic structures and elitism reflecting how an ideal of global convergence towards liberalism and democracy no longer holds true The book then considers how a new international order based on the reason of state can be brought about by global cooperation between the US Russia and China along with a return to properly regulated finance and a renewed focus on community in the wake of the coronavirus pandemic The book will be of interest to those working in international economics and international relations as well as academics of economic history and political economy Giulio Sapelli has taught Economic History and Political Economy at universities in Europe in two Americas Australia and New Zealand He has worked as a consultant and board member in industrial and financial groups Among his latest publications is Beyond Capitalism published by Palgrave Macmillan 2018 This book is a translation of an original Italian edition The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence machine translation by the service DeepL.com A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content so that the book will read stylistically differently from a conventional translation
