Europeanization and the European Economic Area Johanna Jonsdottir, 2013 This book examines Europeanization in the European Economic Area EEA exploring whether non member states can have an input into EU decision making and whether the EU can successfully export its policies within the framework of the EEA Iceland Norway and Liechtenstein while not EU member states are members of the European Free Trade Association EFTA and signatories of the EEA Agreement The Agreement allows participation in the EU s internal market but also requires extensive and continuous adaptation to EU rules Whilst existing literature is limited mainly to the EU s impact on its own member states or neighbours to the east this book extends the study of Europeanization to the EEA exploring whether Iceland as a non member state can have an input into EU decision making and conversely whether the EU can ensure that its policies are adhered to outside of its borders The author argues that although the EEA Agreement is not without its challenges it has proved considerably more resilient than originally expected This raises the question of whether the EEA provides a realistic alternative to EU membership for other states with close ties to the EU Delving into the largely unknown intersection between the EU and the EEA and providing important new insights into the Europeanization process Europeanization and the European Economic Area will be of strong interest to students and scholars of European Union politics and policy making European Union Enlargement Nordic politics and comparative politics
