gained her PhD from the University of Cambridge A World Atlas of Translation Yves Gambier, Ubaldo Stecconi, 2019-02-15
 What do people think of translation in the different historical cultural and linguistic traditions of the world How many uses has translation been put to How distant from one another are the concepts of translation found in the different traditions These are some of the questions A World Atlas of Translation addresses Its twenty one reports give us pictures taken from the inside both from traditions that are well represented in the literature and from the many that for now are not But the Atlas is not content with documenting no map is this innocent In fact the wealth of information collected and made accessible by its reporters can be useful to gauge the dispersion of translation concepts across traditions As you read its reports the Atlas will keep asking How far apart do these concepts look to you Finally and more ambitiously the reports can help us test the hypothesis that a cross cultural notion of translation exists In this respect the Atlas is mostly a proof of concept It hopes to encourage further fact based research in quest of a robust and compelling unifying notion of translation American Dreams Larry R. Juchartz, Elizabeth A. Stolarek, Christy Rishoi, 2009 American Dreams explores the evolution and multiple meanings of the American Dream inviting students to consider how the concept has changed over time which groups have and have not been included in the dream and how rhetoric has enabled the dreams of a few to be shared by millions

Cultural Translations in Medieval Romance Victoria Flood, Megan G. Leitch, 2022 New approaches to this most fluid of medieval genres considering in particular its reception and transmission Romance was the most popular secular literature of the Middle Ages and has been understood most productively as a genre that continually refashioned itself The essays collected in this volume explore the subject of translation both linguistic and cultural in relation to the composition reception and dissemination of romance across the languages of late medieval Britain Ireland and Iceland In taking this multilingual approach this volume proposes a re centring and extension of our understanding of the corpus of medieval Insular romance which although long considered extra canonical has over the previous decades acquired something approaching its own canon a canon which we might now begin to unsettle and of which we might ask new questions The topics of the essays gathered here range from Dafydd ap Gwilym and Walter Map to Melusine and English Trojan narratives and address topics from women and merchants to werewolves and marvels Together they position the study of romance in translation in relation to cross border and cross linguistic transmission and reception and alongside the generic re imaginings of romance both early and late that implicate romance in new linguistic cultural and social networks The volume also shows how even where linguistic translation is not involved we can understand the ways in which romance moved across cultural and social boundaries and incorporated elements of different genres into its own capacious and malleable frame as types of translation in terms of learning or power or both Out of the Shtetl Nancy Sinkoff, 2003 The Dancer and the Dance Chan Sin-wai, 2014-10-17 The Dancer and the Dance is a collection of thirteen essays in translation studies Unlike many similar collections that have appeared in the past decades it is the product of theory integrated with practice in it the authors have steered clear of theorizing in a vacuum making sure that their findings tally with what actually happens in translation there is no attempt at putting forward hypotheses based on mere speculation As translation theorists and or translators whose specialties cover translation studies linguistics cultural studies computer aided translation Chinese literature English literature comparative literature and creative writing the thirteen authors have taken up the challenge of unravelling the mystery of what in I A Richards s words may very probably be the most complex type of event yet produced in the evolution of the cosmos Impossible as the task may have seemed they have all succeeded each in his her own way in tracing out many warp and weft threads as well as hitherto undiscovered patterns in the vast gorgeous and mysterious tapestry woven by God after Babel
