Translation, Travel, Migration Loredana Polezzi, 2016-04-08 The connection between travel and translation is often evoked in contemporary critical theory both practices seen as metaphors of mobility and flux linked to globalized post modern society Travel is a multiple activity encompassing temporary and voluntary displacement repeated movement exile economic migration diaspora Places of origin are often plural and unstable in spite of the enduring appeal of traditional labels such as mother country or patrie The multiple interfaces between translation travel and migration are the focus of all contributions in this special issue Starting from different points of view and using a variety of methodologies the authors raise fundamental questions about the way in which we perceive the link between language national or ethnic identity and individual voice Topics range from the interaction between travel travel narratives and translation in early English representations of China to the special role played by interpreters in mediating the first contact between a literate and a non literate culture from the multiple functions and audiences addressed by contemporary Romani literature and its translation to the political as well a cultural implications of translating popular music across the Bosphorus A number of the articles focus on detailed textual analysis covering the intersection between exile self translation and translingualism in the work of Manuel Puig the uses and limitations of translation in the works of migrant authors or the impact on figurations of Europe of experimental work embracing polylingualism Collectively these contributions also underline the importance of a closer examination of our assumptions about who the translators and the interpreters are and what roles they play in our society

Legal Issues in Global Contexts Kirk St. Amant, Martine Rife, 2016-12-05 Today it has been said the world is flat as online media allow information to move easily from point to point across the earth International legal differences however are increasingly affecting the ease with which data and ideas can be shared across nations Copyright law for example affects the international flow of materials by stipulating who has the right to replicate or to share certain kinds of content Similarly perspectives on privacy rights can differ from nation to nation and affect how personal information is shared globally Moreover national laws can affect the exchange of ideas by stipulating the language in which information must be presented in different geopolitical regions Today s technical communicators need to understand how legal factors can affect communication practices if they wish to work effectively in global contexts This collection provides an overview of different legal aspects that technical communicators might encounter when creating materials or sharing information in international environments Through addressing topics ranging from privacy rights and information exchange to the legalities of business practices in virtual worlds and perspectives on authorship and ownership the contributors to this volume examine a variety of communication based legal issues that can cause problems or miscommunication in international interactions Reviewing such topics from different perspectives the authors collectively provide ideas that could serve as a foundation for creating best practices on or for engaging in future research in the area of legal issues in international settings

Service Research Challenges and

Solutions for the Future Internet M. Papazoglou, Klaus Pohl, Michael Parkin, Andreas Metzger, 2010-12-09
 Foundations for the Internet of Services Today's Internet is standing at a crossroads. The Internet has evolved from a source of information to a critical infrastructure which underpins our lives and economies. The demand for more multimedia content, more interconnected devices, more users, a richer user experience, services available any time and anywhere, increases the pressure on existing networks and service platforms. The Internet needs a fundamental rearrangement to be ready to meet future needs. One of the areas of research for the Future Internet is the Internet of Services, a vision of the Internet where everything, e.g., information, software, platforms, and infrastructures, is available as a service. Services available on the Internet of Services can be used by anyone if they are used according to the policies defined by the provider and they can be extended with new services by anyone. Advantages of the Internet of Services include the possibility to build upon other people's efforts and the little investment needed upfront to develop an application. The risk involved in pursuing new business ideas is diminished and might lead to more innovative ideas being tried out in practice. It will lead to the appearance of new companies that are able to operate in niche areas, providing services to other companies that will be able to focus on their core business.

Conceptual Structures: Standards and Practices William M. Tepfenhart, Walling Cyre, 2007-07-23
 With all of the news about the Internet and the Y2K problem, it is easy to forget that other areas of computer science still exist. Reading the newspaper or watching the television conveys a very warped view of what is happening in computer science. This conference illustrates how a maturing subdiscipline of computer science can continue to grow and integrate within it, both old and new approaches, despite or perhaps due to a lack of public awareness. The conceptual graph community has basically existed since the 1984 publication of John Sowa's book Conceptual Structures: Information Processing In Mind and Machine. In this book, John Sowa laid the foundations for a knowledge representation model called conceptual graphs based on semantic networks and the existential graphs of C. S. Peirce. Conceptual graphs constitute a very powerful and expressive knowledge representation scheme, inheriting the benefits of logic and the mathematics of graphs. The expressiveness and formal underpinnings of conceptual graph theory have attracted a large international community of researchers and scholars. The International Conferences on Conceptual Structures, and this is the seventh in the series, is the primary forum for these researchers to report their progress and activities. As in the past, the doors were open to admit alternate representation models and approaches.
