Translation Of Children's Literature Topics In Translation:

The Translation of Children's Literature Gillian Lathey, 2006-01-01 In the last few decades a number of European scholars have paid an increasing amount of attention to children's literature in translation. This book not only provides a synthetic account of what has been achieved in the field but also makes us fully aware of all the textual, visual and cultural complexities that translating for children entails. Students of this subject have had problems in finding a book that attempted an up to date and comprehensive review of the field. Gillian Lathey's Reader does just this. Dr Piotr Kuhiwczak, Director, Centre for Translation and Comparative Cultural Studies, University of Warwick. Translating Children's Literature Gillian

Lathey, 2015-07-24 Translating Children's Literature is an exploration of the many developmental and linguistic issues related to writing and translating for children, an audience that spans a period of enormous intellectual progress and affective change from birth to adolescence. Lathey looks at a broad range of children's literature from prose fiction to poetry and picture books. Each of the seven chapters addresses a different aspect of translation for children, covering Narrative style and the challenges of translating the child's voice, The translation of cultural markers for young readers, Translation of the modern picture book, Dialogue, dialect and street language in modern children's literature, Read aloud qualities, wordplay, onomatopoeia and the translation of children's poetry, Retranslation, retelling and reworking, The role of translation for children within the global publishing and translation industries. This is the first practical guide to address all aspects of translating children's literature, featuring extracts from commentaries and interviews with published translators of children's literature as well as examples and case studies across a range of languages and texts. Each chapter includes a set of questions and exercises for students. Translating Children's Literature is essential reading for professional translators, researchers and students on courses in translation studies or children's literature. Children's Literature in Translation

Jan Van Coillie, Walter P. Verschueren, 2014-07-16 Children's classics from Alice in Wonderland to the works of Astrid Lindgren, Roald Dahl, J.K. Rowling and Philip Pullman are now generally recognized as literary achievements that from a translator's point of view are no less demanding than serious adult literature. This volume attempts to explore the various challenges posed by the translation of children's literature and at the same time highlight some of the strategies that translators can and do follow when facing these challenges. A variety of translation theories and concepts are put to critical use, including Even-Zohar's polysystem theory, Toury's concept of norms, Venuti's views on foreignizing and domesticating translations and on the translator's visibility, and Chesterman's prototypical approach. Topics include the ethics of translating for children, the importance of childhood images, the revelation of the translator in prefaces, the role of translated children's books in the establishment of literary canons, the status of translations in the former East Germany, questions of taboo and censorship in the translation of adolescent novels, the collision of norms in different translations of a Swedish children's classic, the handling of cultural intertextuality in the Spanish translations of contemporary British fantasy books.

should be translated for children in the target culture and how this process takes place The author presents different ways of looking at the translation of children's books focusing particularly on the practices of intralingual and interlingual translations as a form of rewriting across a selection of European languages This book will be of interest to Translation Studies and children's literature scholars as well as those with a wider interest in the impact of ideology on culture

Translating for Children Ritta Oittinen, 2002-06-01 Translating for Children is not a book on translations of children's literature but a book on translating for children It concentrates on human action in translation and focuses on the translator the translation process and translating for children in particular Translators bring to the translation their cultural heritage their reading experience and in the case of children's books their image of childhood and their own child image In so doing they enter into a dialogic relationship that ultimately involves readers the author the illustrator the translator and the publisher What makes Translating for Children unique is the special attention it pays to issues like the illustrations of stories the performance like reading aloud of the books in translation and the problem of adaptation It demonstrates how translation and its context takes precedence can take over efforts to discover and reproduce the original author's intentions Rather than the authority of the author the book concentrates on the intentions of the readers of a book in translation both the translator and the target language readers

Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature Helen Frank, 2014-04-08 Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature offers a detailed and innovative model of analysis for examining the complexities of translating children's literature and sheds light on the interpretive choices at work in moving texts from one culture to another The core of the study addresses the issue of how images of a nation locale or country are constructed in translated children's literature with the translation of Australian children's fiction into French serving as a case study Issues examined include the selection of books for translation the relationship between children's books and the national and international publishing industry the packaging of translations and the importance of titles blurbs and covers the linguistic and stylistic features specific to translating for children intertextual references the function of the translation in the target culture didactic and pedagogical aims euphemistic language and explicitation and literariness in translated texts The findings of the case study suggest that the most common constructs of Australia in French translations reveal a preponderance of traditional Eurocentric signifiers that identify Australia with the outback the antipodes the exotic the wild the unknown the void the end of the world the young and innocent nation and the Far West Contemporary signifiers that construct Australia as urban multicultural Aboriginal worldly and inharmonious are seriously under represented The study also shows that French translations are conventional conservative and didactic showing preference for an exotic rather than local specificity with systematic manipulation of Australian referents betraying a perception of Australia as antipodean rural exoticism The significance of the study lies in underscoring the manner in which a given culture is constructed in another cultural milieu especially through translated children's literature

Negotiating Translation and Transcreation of Children's Literature Joanna Dybiec-Gajer, Riitta Oittinen, Małgorzata Kodura, 2020-05-04. This book offers fresh critical insights to the field of children's literature translation studies by applying the concept of transcreation established in the creative industries of the globalized world to bring to the fore the transformative transgressional and creative aspects of rewriting for children and young audiences. This socially situated and culturally dependent practice involves ongoing complex negotiations between creativity and normativity, balancing text-related problems and genre conventions with readers' expectations, constraints imposed by established canonical translations and publishers' demands. Focussing on the translator's strategies and decision-making process, the book investigates phenomena where transcreation is especially at play in children's literature, such as dual address, ambiguity, nonsense, humour, play on words, and other creative language use. These also involve genre-specific requirements, for example, rhyme and rhythm in poetry. The book draws on a wide range of mostly Anglophone texts for children and their translations into languages of limited diffusion to demonstrate the numerous ways in which information, meaning, and emotions are transferred to new linguistic and cultural contexts. While focussing mostly on interlingual transfer, the volume analyses a variety of translation types, from established canonical renditions by celebrity translators to non-professional translations and intralingual rewritings. It also examines iconotextual dynamics of text and image. The book employs a number of innovative methodologies, from cognitive linguistics and ethnolinguistics to semiotics and autoethnographic approaches, going beyond text analysis to include empirical research on children's reactions to translation strategies. Highlighting the complex dynamics at work in the process of transcreating for children, this volume is essential reading for students and researchers in translation studies, children's fiction, and adaptation studies.

The Américas Award Laretta Henderson, 2015-12-16. First awarded in 1993, the Américas Award is given in recognition of books that authentically and engagingly portray Latino as in Latin America, the Caribbean, or the United States. By combining both and linking the Americas, the award reaches beyond geographic borders as well as multicultural international boundaries, focusing instead upon cultural heritages within the hemisphere. The Award is unique in that it selects Latino youth literature for classroom use and in that it focuses on the entire Western Hemisphere. Scholars from the fields of literature, education, library science, and theater engage with Latino a Critical Race Theory. LatCrit in this ecollection of essays about the Américas Award, the Award-winning and honored books, and the contexts in which the books are used. This collection offers essays on the history of the award, close readings of Award-winning and honored books situated in the classroom, and discussions of how best to use the books in the classroom, library, and theater.
