Eco-Trauma Cinema Anil Narine, 2014-09-19 Film has taken a powerful position alongside the global environmental movement from didactic documentaries to the fantasy pleasures of commercial franchises This book investigates in particular film's complex role in representing ecological traumas Eco trauma cinema represents the harm we as humans inflict upon our natural surroundings or the injuries we sustain from nature in its unforgiving iterations The term encompasses both circumstances because these seemingly distinct instances of ecological harm are often related and even symbiotic the traumas we perpetuate in an ecosystem through pollution and unsustainable resource management inevitably return to harm us Contributors to this volume engage with eco trauma cinema in its three general forms accounts of people who are traumatized by the natural world narratives that represent people or social processes which traumatize the environment or its species and stories that depict the aftermath of ecological catastrophe The films they examine represent a central challenge of our age to overcome our disavowal of environmental crises to reflect on the unsavoury forces reshaping the planet's ecosystems and to restructure the mechanisms responsible for the state of the earth

Memory, Place and Autobiography Jill Daniels,2019-01-03 There has been a significant growth in autobiographical documentary films in recent years This innovative book proposes that the filmmaker in her dual role as maker and subject may act as a cultural guide in an exploration of the social world. It argues that in the cinematic mediation of memory the mimetic approach in the construction of documentary films may not be feasible and memory may instead be evoked elliptically through hybrid strategies such as critical realism and fictional enactment. Recognizing that identity is formed by history and what goes on in the world, the book charts the historical trajectory of the British independent filmmaking movement from the mid 1970s to the present growth of new online distribution outlets and new media through digital technologies and social media.

Teaching Film Lucy Fischer, Patrice Petro, 2012-07-27
 Film studies has been a part of higher education curricula in the United States almost since the development of the medium. Although the study of film is dispersed across a range of academic departments, programs and scholarly organizations, film studies has come to be recognized as a field in its own right. In an era when teaching and scholarship are increasingly interdisciplinary, film studies continues to expand and thrive, attracting new scholars and fresh ideas, direction and research. Given the dynamism of the field, experienced and beginning instructors alike need resources for bringing the study of film into the classroom. This volume will help instructors conceptualize contemporary film studies in pedagogical terms. The first part of the volume features essays on theory and on representation, including gender, race and sexuality. Contributors then examine the geographies of cinema and offer practical suggestions for structuring courses on national, regional and transnational film. Several essays focus on interdisciplinary approaches, while others describe courses designed around genre: film noir, the musical, mode, animation, documentary, avant garde film, or the formal elements of film such as sound, music and mise en scene. The volume closes with a section on film and media in the digital age, in which contributors discuss the opportunities and challenges presented by access to resources, media convergence and technological developments in the field.

Postwar Renoir Colin Davis, 2012-07-26 This book re assesses director Jean Renoir s work between his departure from France in 1940 and his death in 1979 and contributes to the debate over how the medium of film registers the impact of trauma The 1930s ended in catastrophe for both for Renoir and for France La Règle du jeu was a critical and commercial disaster on its release in July 1939 and in 1940 France was occupied by Germany Even so Renoir continued to innovate and experiment with his post war work yet the thirteen films he made between 1941 and 1969 constituting nearly half of his work in sound cinema have been sorely neglected in the study of his work With detailed readings of the these films and four novels produced by Renoir in his last four decades Davis explores the direct and indirect ways in which film and Renoir s films in particular depict the aftermath of violence
